this book proposes a radically different anthropological approach to the development and dissemination of mobile health mhealth a rapidly growing sector in healthcare an anthropological approach to mhealth is based on ten 16 month ethnographies in settings across asia africa europe and latin america that showed how conventional health apps may be irrelevant particularly for older people instead the studies found that many people use their mobile and smartphones for health purposes to a surprising extent they take the communicative apps they have become comfortable with such as line wechat and whatsapp and are highly creative in turning them into their own health apps these are the practices from which this book seeks to learn in what we call a smart from below approach this body of research also provided many additional insights including the consequences of googling for health information the role of the smartphone in specific settings such as an oncology clinic in chile or tele psychotherapy in uganda and the lessons learnt during covid 19 around the problems in self tracking overall the authors show how an anthropological approach situated in the observation of everyday life can be the foundation for an alternative but highly promising perspective on the future of mhealth

why do people go to exhibitions and what do they hope to gain from the experience what would happen if people were encouraged to move freely through exhibition spaces take photographs and be playful in this book inge daniels explores what might happen if people and objects were freed from the regulations currently associated with going to an exhibition traditional understandings of exhibitions place the viewers in a one way communication form where the exhibition and those behind its creation inform their audiences however motivations behind exhibition going are multiple and complex and frequently the intentions of curators do not match the expectations of their visitors based on an in depth ethnographic examination of the processes involved in the making and reception of one particular exhibition experiment as well as a study that follows freed objects into their new homes this publication not only sheds light on what exhibitions are but also what they could become in the future featuring over 175 colour illustrations and using practical examples this is an important contribution for students and scholars of anthropology museum studies photography design and architecture
